The Miss Greenbelt Scholarship Organization, Inc. is a volunteer-run, certified non-profit organization that helps young ladies ages 7-19 learn important life skills, confidence and poise. Every contestant attends weekly practices throughout the summer that include workshops on interviews skills, public speaking, healthy living and more. At the end of the summer, contestants compete in a two day pageant that consists of a private interview with a judging panel, an on-stage question, and a modeling walk in which the girls are only scored based on their confidence and poise on stage. The winners then spend a year participating in various community events and service projects to give back to Greenbelt. Furthermore, Miss Greenbelt selects a charity that is near to her heart and fundraises for that charity throughout her reign. Our queens have raised over $10,000 for various charities thus far and we hope to increase this amount every year!

3. Organization's Mailing Address

6N Plateau Place, Greenbelt, MD 20770

(not a City of Greenbelt facility):

4. What is the mission of this organization? Whom do you intend to serve?

The mission of the Prince George's County Peace and Justice Coalition, created in 1986, is to promote cooperation within Prince George's County in pursuing broad goals of peace and social justice. Our members form a network addressing varied progressive causes involving federal, state or county policies, coordinating educational, legislative and other projects.

5. Description of group's activities:

We are one of three groups who have organized a monthly film series since 2007, called the Reel & Meal at the New Deal to explore environmental and social justice issues. In December, for instance, we showed Requiem for the American Dream, in which Noam Chomsky discusses the growing inequality of wealth and power in America. In February we are showing 13th, named after the 13th amendment, which explores how the United States became the country with the world's largest prison population and why a hugely disproportional number of those prisoners are black.

Each year we have a table with our poster and literature at the Labor Day Festival Information Day, Schrom Fest in Greenbelt East in October and at the Greenman Festival in May. We ask people to rank their top three priorities for justice and peace in the world or at home. People thank us for letting them take part in the poll, which takes the form of placing a green dot next to their three priorities.

On September 25, 2016 we worked with the Mowatt Methodist Church to organize Concert Across America featuring local musicians in the Roosevelt Center to bring attention to gun violence and the need for gun control legislation.

Monday, October 10 we presented a panel discussion in the Community Center about Ballot Question D, presenting views both pro and con.

On November 30 we organized a panel discussion in the Community Center called Actions of Welcome to Refugees, about the various projects that serve refugees who have newly arrived in local communities.

On January 8, 21 and 22 we sponsored 3 workshops in the Community Center, called Healing Our Country Post-Election, about how to develop resilience and hope following the recent election and to learn nonviolent communication in order to connect across political differences.

We will again work with the Greenbelt City Council to declare and promote June as Peace Month. As one of the month's several activities, we will gather at the Peace Maker Memorial (which features three benches, trees and peace pole) to reaffirm our commitment to work for peace, social justice and environmental stewardship to honor the lives of four Greenbelt peacemakers: Esther Webb, Bert Donn, Bob Auerbach and Doug Love.
